These civil society partners are also advocating and collaborating with government agencies to ensure that the evidence, lessons and experience of marginalised groups are heard and considered when decisions or policies are made that affect them.

SIGAB's local partner Garamin implements their SOLIDER Program in 15 villages in Kupang and Rote Ndao districts to fulfill the rights of people with disabilities.

Garamin is coordinating with the provincial government, disability networks, and other key stakeholders on the NTT Regional Action Plan for Persons with Disabilities (RAD-PD) to fulfill the government's commitments to disability inclusion in the 2016 national disability law.

At the village level, Garamin establishes village disability groups (kelompok disabilitas desa) to increase the participation of people with disabilities. These groups advocate and collaborate with village and district governments to implement the law and access funds to make government services, programs, and facilities more accessible. This includes access to mainstream and targeted education, social protection, and national health insurance for the poor (JKN-PBI) as well as services to protect and prevent violence against people with disability.

The Garamin disability group is increasing the participation of people with disability in the economy. Members advocate for access to village funds to improve food security and support small businesses and cooperate and with the labour office Disability Services Unit (ULD) to link people with disability to potential employers, training, and job opportunities.

YAKKUM Rehabilitation Centre

YAKKUM Rehabilitation Centre (PR YAKKUM) works to advance the rights of persons with psychosocial disabilities to access services, participate equally and fully in development decisions, and be protected from violence.

YAKKUM aims to reduce the institutionalisation of people with psychosocial disabilities by building the awareness, acceptance, and capacity of families, communities, and government to provide community-based rehabilitation.

YAKKUM also engages with employers, Disability Services Unit (ULD) and livelihood empowerment program providers to reduce barriers and open access to inclusive employment and inclusive entrepreneurship.

Lembaga Bumi Lestari coordinates with the district health office and community health clinics (puskesmas) on drafting operating procedures to increase access to health services, including vaccines, for Indigenous communities.

Perempuan AMAN facilitates the involvement of indigenous women in socio-economic mapping of their communities through focus group discussions (FGD). Data is used to advocate for the rights and needs of Indigenous communities in village development plans and budgets, and the handling of land use rights. Lembaga Bumi Lestari has facilitated establishment of Disability Forums in 6 villages, and the Kalamba Village government has allocated village funds to support proposals from the Kalamba disability group.

Migrant CARE (Indonesian Association for Migrant Worker Sovereignty)

NTT is one of the top four migrant worker sending areas in Indonesia. Migrant CARE's local partner YKS works in 9 villages in Lembata District to advocate for implementation of domestic and international laws and policies to protect migrant worker rights, prevent trafficking and to guarantee access to social protection programs.

YKS cooperates with the several government agencies including the Lembata District offices of labour (Disnaker) and migrant worker protection (BP2MI) to fulfil these rights through its village services model, called DESBUMI, or Village that Cares for Migrant Workers. DESBUMI migrant worker groups (kelompok buruh migran) provide services to prospective and return migrant workers to support legal migration, pre-departure training, and case handling and referrals for complaints, rights violations and human trafficking. DESBUMI groups assist village governments to collect data on migrant workers who need access to social protection, health insurance, and employment insurance. Lessons from DESBUMI have been reflected in 6 village regulations in Lembata District.

DEBUMI also supports return migrant workers to develop alternative sources of income through formation of savings and loans groups and business cooperatives. Members conduct surveys on migrant's economic potential, access business training through the labour office, and participate in village development planning meetings (musrenbangdes) to secure funding for business proposals. The Lembata District government is supporting the expansion of DEBUMI to other villages in the district.

Local partner PEKA-PM implements the Sekolah Perempuan model in 5 villages in Kupang District.

Through their complaints post (pos pengaduan) service in Tanah Merah Village, Women's School members work with government to collect data and bridge gaps in access to government services, such as legal identity, wheelchair assistance for people with disability and free IVA examinations. Volunteers handle and refer cases of violence and child marriage and advocate for local regulations to implement the national law concerning criminal acts of sexual violence (TPKS Law) and national child marriage prevention strategy.

PEKA-PM is cooperating with the private sector and the Kupang City and District governments to build women's economic resilience. Collaborative efforts include: collecting socio-economic data; conducting capacity assessments; forming business groups; providing access to micro-finance; and providing training in food processing, souvenir development, digital marketing, and financial management.

Many are older women, may have a disability or be caring for children with disability on their own. Through participation in village meetings (musrenbangdes) women can resolve gaps in access to the services they need and secure village funding to sustain their PEKKA business initiatives. These include savings and loans groups, PEKKA Mart, PEKKA Production and revival of PEKKA Barter Market.

The success of barter market (pasar barter) in Lembata has seen several nearby villages ask Pekka Union for help in coordinating a barter market in their area.
